Dreaming of being a vet since a child, Katie hit her goal by graduating from Liverpool Vet School in 2012. Her career flourished externally, becoming a highly qualified, popular and successful practitioner, but internally the story was quite different. Wracked with self-doubt and never able to internalise her success, she walked the dark path of imposter syndrome.

Then she learned some things that changed her life. Now she shares with others her transformative story and techniques, looking at belief systems, human potential and practical tips to progress even in the face of imposter syndrome.

Katie is a relatable, captivating and empathetic speaker, that is inspiring to a wide variety of audiences.

"Katie is inspiring not only to her own profession, but way beyond too. You can't help but find her passion infectious, and believe you're not a fraud either. Definitely recommend".

- Conference Delegate

"Great communicator, she transmits serenity and trust in everything she does. Plus certainly she has the magic power of making your day better."

- Member, Organising Committee

"I'm so pleased that you spoke at our AGM on Sunday. Your talk was really relevant and helpful. On a personal level I found it wonderful and I know from speaking to others that I was not alone."

- T. Dolye, President BVLGBT+

"This was the best talk I've attended in years. Imposter syndrome - I felt very seen and learned a lot about how to try and help myself re-focus."
